Signal Hill Petroleum was selected for its ongoing philanthropic efforts and community involvement. The company has donated over half-a-million dollars to community programs in the past few years, including a recent gift of $250,000 to California State University Long Beach (CSULB) for the development of an environmental geochemistry laboratory. “Oil production is a major driver to the American economy. Our mission is to ensure American energy security, American jobs and American prosperity through investing in our local community,” said Slater.

The annual awards recognize businesses large and small that go above and beyond the call of duty in supporting their communities. Signal Hill Petroleum is one of the 23 businesses honored for supporting job growth and communities investments by Sen. Ricardo Lara.

“Each business here today plays a vital roll in our regional economy,” said Lara of the honorees. Our local businesses contribute to 90% of the job growth here in California. These are truly the economic engines of our city and of our state.”
